Citrix Online: Company Overview

Connecting People Like Never Before in Today's Worldwide Workplace

From its roots as an entrepreneurial start-up company in 1997, Citrix Online has earned distinction for boldly disrupting business as usual by bringing easy-to-use Web-based services to business professionals everywhere. Today, Citrix Online product families radically simplify remote computing for millions of users worldwide. A division of Citrix Systems, Inc. (Nasdaq: CTXS), Citrix Online offers the leading Web-based remote access and collaboration services in the software-as-a-service model, as well as high-definition audio conferencing.

Creating better ways to get work done anytime and anywhere is how Citrix Online became the first to introduce computer remote access via the Internet. The company was founded as a collaborative effort by a university professor and two of his enterprising students for managing their communication when the professor was working from his offices and labs throughout the world. Together, they designed Web-based screen-sharing technology that allowed instant access to their computers, regardless of location. The former student entrepreneurs continue to shape and direct the company's technology vision, with Bernd Christiansen as Vice President and Chief Technology Officer and Malte Muenke as Vice President and Chief Architect.

Developing purpose-built products from the ground up is fundamental to the company's culture of meeting customer needs. Every Citrix Online product is designed to deliver exceptional reliability, speed, security and ease of use while being affordable to businesses of all sizes – from individual professionals to large organizations. This winning combination of simplicity and cost-effective pricing enables the company to enjoy widespread adoption of its Web-based offerings.
